Don't you know
(It's only a game)

Knocking on doors that shouldn't be open,
running with the ones that do the same.
Who the hell cares where we're going, don't you know it's only a game.
Don't you know it's only a game my friend,
chance makes a plaything of life.
A girl was waiting and on my way I met a goddess of fire.
Now the girl no longer waits for me, goddess
of fire long burnt out.
Someone else has taken my place and they're
living in my house.
What do I do, where can I go, who is the one for me.
Don't you know it's only a game my friend,
just like the lottery.
Knocking on doors that shouldn't be open,
running with the ones that do the same.
Who the hell cares where we're going, don't you know it's only a game.
Don't you know it's only a game my friend,
chance makes a plaything of life.
Had lunch today with a beautiful lady and now she's my ex-wife.
The good don't win and the bad don't lose,
about half the time you see.
Don't you know it's only a game my friend,
just like the lottery. →
