

Radiance

To women who are large, my eyes are drawn
To the radiance of their size
They are the treasure after a long hard quest
To me a magnificent prize
They catch my eye and keep it
As I watch the beauty walk away
Large wide fine looking ladies
With the big womens sway
Rubens knew just what he was doing
When he painted them long ago
To find out some are feeling bad
About the shape I love is a blow
Sometimes they try to hide their size
That really is a shame
I'd like to tell them how good they look
But would they think that it's a game
To women who are large, please walk your walk
With beauty and with pride
There are no finer women than you
When you walk with nothing to hide
